Dr. DeCusatis will review some of the reasons why cybersecurity is so hard to get right, and what needs to be done next to stay one step ahead of the hackers. He will show some of the free tools that make it easier to perform recon on systems, and looks at recent attacks as examples of what's going wrong, and how we can do better. He will also close with some remarks on the emerging Internet of Things, and why you should be afraid to turn on that new smart TV.
